Please Note: In the case of Twitter we looked for links that brought us directly to their twitter page. We then noted the followers. In the case of Facebook we followed any links we found and if we had to login to Facebook to view the profile page we registered that as zero fans. The reason for this was that Google does not index these profile pages in Facebook. If we could not find a Facebook fan page, we also recorded zero fans. If we entered a fan page we noted the results. We would like to acknowledge that some miscalculation may have occurred. This study was carried out on April 30th 2010.
